WHAT IT IS An eastern outpost of Calgary's coolest spa. Daniel Thompson, creative director of Teye Treatments, the skin-care and cosmetics collection manufactured exclusively for Oasis, describes the Toronto location as an "un-spa" because it goes beyond the usual cosmetic treatments to include spiritual and holistic remedies as well. And it's poised to be Canada's largest free-standing day spa, with close to 2,140 square metres of space devoted entirely to pampering and serenity. It has a resource area with books and CDs, five relaxation rooms and a Zen garden. The services are set up so that you can go in for a speedy eyebrow wax or hang around all day.

WHAT'S IN-STORE All the regular treatments you'd expect from a spa, plus Oasis' holistic practices that care for both body and mind. All massages incorporate various methods, like reflexology, reiki and hand/foot therapy, and the facial services are 100-percent natural. No one here is going to suggest a Botox injection to "fix" a few expression lines.

THE EXTRAS You can become a member of Oasis for $99 a year. Membership offers you preferred pricing on products and services and enters you into the Wellness Rewards program, with points earned that can be redeemed toward a number of services (or gift certificates for friends and family). And since most mothers could use a day at the spa too, Oasis has partnered with the Distillery District Early Learning Centre to offer daycare services for the little ones. —M.A.
